EXPERTISE

- Procurement law
- Public funding and subsidy law
- Construction contracts
- Law of architects and engineers

Martin specialises in the field of public procurement law. Here he supports principals and contractors in procurement procedures, in procurement review proceedings and in subsequent claims for damages. He also advises on upstream issues such as tendering obligations or the creation or optimisation of internal procurement guidelines. A further key practice area is in advising and representing clients in matters of public procurement law. Martin also advises principals and contractors on private construction law as well as architects' and engineers' law.
